Social Distancing In High-Traffic Facilities

With the loosening of COVID-19 shutdown measures, the need for continued social distancing remains key to protect against further spread of the virus. This is particularly important in environments with high numbers of occupants such as malls, transportation hubs, stadiums and arenas, theaters, large hotels, and convention centers.

In some spaces, planning for social distancing has occurred in a reactive manner, with signage and... More >>>

Building a factory during a pandemic: an owner's perspective

Gathered Foods Executive Chair Chris Kerr still hasn't seen the place that has consumed a great amount of his thoughts and actions for the last two years, $20 million of his company's funds and 42,500 square feet in an industrial park in Heath, Ohio.

But the founder and former CEO of the plant-based seafood company that makes Good Catch products will finally see the new custom-built factory next month. The factory, which was...More >>>
